There was a regular stamped among the fancies in Wall street to-day. A perfect panic seised upon holders, and a great desire was manifested to sell, even at the depreciation. There were transactions on time, both buyer's and seller's option, netwithstanding the rapid define in prices. At the first board, Kentucky 6's fall off y per cent; Illinois Central Bonds, 2; New York Central Bends, ¾; Delaware and Hudson, ¾; Canton Company, ¾; Nicaragua Transit, ¾; Cumberland Coal, ½; New York Central Railroad, ¾; Melhigan Central Railroad, ¾; Northern Indiana Railroad, 1; Erie Railroad, -1¾; Harlem, ¾; Reading Railroad, 1. A very large quantity 14: Northern musing Mailroad, 1. A very large quantity of stock changed hands at our quotations. Illinois Center of the Mailroad of Stock changed hands at our quotations. tral Bonds were freely offered in the face of a deprechation of two per cent. There appear to be great appre-bensions relative to the future course of prices for stocks generally. At the second board there was a slight reaction, as might have been expected after such a great and rapid decline. Erie Railroad went by M per cent; Reading Rafiroad, M; Nicaragua Transit, &; Cumberland, M. There seems to be no end to disasters in the financial and comnercial world. From every direction we are continually seciving accounts of failures of banks, banking houses and mercantile firms. The banks throughout the entire West appear to be in a state of insolvency, and upon the eve of a suspension. We know not what may come next. They will create a greater panic than yet realized, and all are afraid to enter into any movements, fearful some-thing may occur to upset the best and closest calculations. The general disposition is to keep quiet and wait patiently for the end. The time is coming fast when it will be perfectly safe to buy any stock on the list. Prices must, at the rate of depreciation realized within the past month or so, ultimately become so much reduced that all speculators will be buyers, and then the upward run must be rapid. We must have a great change in money matters before outsiders can buy at any price.
They must get the means from some source to buy even at reduced rates. The probability, which to daily becoming strengthened, that some companies will pass their dividends, and that others, contemplating the announcement of dividends, will not mpon prices, and may depreciate the securities alluded to still further; but a depression from such causes can be but temporary, and in the end may prove advan tageens. We have no doubt many will be disappointed, and that many may be forced to realize on the principal the managers of the companies referred to could, under the circumstances, pursue, and the end justifies the seans used for its accomplishment. In times like these, all human calculations fail. A few days in such an event-ful period changes completely the complexion of matters, and all our hopes and anticipations suddenly disap-pear, leaving us all in the midst of doubt and uncertainby. A few days since we began to feel as though the worst was over—as though we had passed through the severity of the pressure, and only required time to recuperate and husband our resources; but it seems we were a little premature in our reckonings — that here was still a lower depth before we found bottom. The mutterings of the convulsion we heard a week or two since, in the West, have commenced again with increased force, and probably will burst forth and sweep ever that entire section of country. The banking sys-tems of several States in that region are in a wretched andition. It is reported that there is not a solvent bank in Indiana, and we have several bank suspensions in Canal Bank, of Cleveland, and the Bank of Circleville, have all stopped. Nearly half a dozen banking firms of Cincinnati have failed, and the panic appears to be spreading in all directions from that city. Several failures have also been reported at Buffalo. These suspensions will throw upon the market a large amount of pubhe securities, and great sacrifices must be made. We trusts few days will suffice to clear up the excitement and enable people to take a calmer, cooler view of mat-

We believe that the Illinois Central Rail and Company s the first which has come within gunsho, of its original estimates of cost. It has done so, however, in face of a combination of adverse circumstances which are om to be encountered. The original estimate was $16,500,000, by Col. Mason, in 1852. This estimate was based upon responsible contracts when wages were reasonable, and on the purchase of the iron at a very low figure. The company therefore issued $17,000,000 of ds, secured on 2,000,000 acres of land, in addition to the road to be built by the bonds. The work progressed within the estimates of time and cost up to the autumn of 1853, when wages had risen for laborers 25 per cent—say from $1 to $1 25 per day—under the general railroad excitement. It is obvious that where sen thousand men are employed that such an advance was formidable. It caused the failure of many contractors, compelling the company to make new contracts at eed rates. This item alone would have increased The cost one to one and a half millions, if no other dif-Boulties had occurred; but early this summer the cholera caused a stampede among the laborers, making statill more costly to keep labor employed. At the name time, the great panic in all railroad securities took place, rendering it next to impossible to raise money on such securities. The company had, however, nother resource, its lands, but here arose a new diffioulty in the loss of crops, which made it difficult to sell land unless at a sacrifice. To put the 495,000 acres of hand at the disposal of the company, independent of the 2.000,000 acres in trust to secure the bonds, on the marhet at that juncture, was to make a great sacrifice. The company had promised that no more bonds should be issued. Under these circumstances the gentlemen who composed the company put their hands in their own pockets to pay the difference, assessing the stock $10 per share, and have now called for $5 more, making 15 per cent, say $2,000,000, which makes good the cor tingencies that have arisen; first, from railroad specu-lation; second, from cholera; third, from railroad conwalsion; fourth, from crop-failures. Under all these formidable difficulties the track has steadily stretched its length, meeting given points in the given time, and promptly ferming promised connections involving an expenditure of $4,300,000 since July. The whole road will by January 15, 1855, be in full operation, with the exception of the connection of the Chicago branch with the main stem, which will be some months later. To do this they have not had resourse to any modern Snancial expedient, nor have they accumulated an unwieldly "floating debt," nor have they sacrificed their land; but they have assessed their own stock, thus in-creasing the security of the bonds by the expenditure upon the road of $2,000,000 more than their proceeds, at the same time retaining the land for the benefit of future rise under the growing population and wealth of the State. The bondholders have thus a guarantee that the bonds will be protected by the stockholders under all circumstances. No better evidence of faith in the great success of the undertaking could be afforded than for the gentlemen who compose the company to refuse to berrow any more in any shape, but to meet themselves all contingencies that have arisen in the course of their own unremitting management; neither have they sought to disguise this fact, that revulsion, pestilence and famine have disturbed the original estimates of cost respect to stockholders, but not in regard to bondbolders; and we believe this is the first instance where the actual cost has so closely followed the estimates. The steamship North Star, at this port from Aspinwall, brings two weeks later intelligence from California, and one million seven hundred thousand dollars in gold and gold dust. The Golden Age, at Panama from San Franeisco, brought down $1,861,776 in gold and gold dust. The commercial advices from California do not vary ma-terially from those received by the previous steamers. Quite an excitement had been created in financial cir-

The Cleveland Hereld says:—

The Miami Valley Rank, of Dayton, has suspended, but as its circulation is secured by United States and Ohio stocks, the banks throughout Ohio receive the notes as readily as before its suspension. The notes of the bank are at par, showing what confidence is placed in the present banking system of Ohio. If Indiana had such securities behind her free bank bills, there would now be no panic, and no run upon her banks.

more and Ohio Railroad, during the year ending Sept. 30, 1854, exhibit the following result:—The receipts from all sources have been $369,220 63, of which $278,302 13 was derived from passengers, and $90,927 50 from mails and freights, showing a decrease, as compared with last year, of $15,850 78. The actual decrease in passenger receipts being $30,833 64, while the increase in revenue from freights amounted to $15,052 86. The anticipated increase in travel which it was presumed would follow a reduction in the fare to $1 25 not having been realized, on the 1st of May last the fare was advanced to $1 50, and the result shows the propriety of the measure; the number of passengers has not diminished, and the revenue derived during the last six months, as compared with the first half of the year, has been increased by $20,227 25. The working expenses for the year have been $181,370 65, being 40 1-10 per cent of the gross revenue. The amount of State tax paid for the year from passengers between Baltimore and Washington, way travel included, and is equal to a fraction over 3½ per cent of the entire capital. The construction account has been swelled during the twelve months by $1,082,459 19, under the subjoined heads:—Real estate, $260,100 12; rolling power, $550,179 15; second track, $447,066 81; cost of road, $425,123 11.

A large amount of counterfeit quarter eagles are in irculation, and so well executed as to deceive any one. They are made from a genuine New Orleans Mint die, stolen some years since, and bear the letter O under the talons of the eagle. It is made of a casting of pure gold, filled with silver, and probably with platina, to increase the weight. The weight is 60 6-10 grains, which is only four grains light, and the coating of gold weighs 80 1-10 in silver, or $1 25 in raw material, besides the labor of making.

ing the past week calling for special reference. Several purchasers have been in the market, settling their accounts for goods obtained on credit earlier in the season and they have met all the claims of their creditors with laudable punctuality and exactness. They likewise bought some additional lots of desirable fabrics, to keep up an assortment, and for these they paid pretty full rates; but this action was not sufficiently general nor spirited to vary the uniformly dull state of the business. The stocks have been lately decreasing, and they are now lighter than it was previously supposed they would turn out to be by this time; yet owners are anxious to get rid of them, and as they cannot find buyers for such very easily, their eagerness exerts a baneful influence upon prices. These are much depressed, and except in the case of very choice articles, which from their scarcity rule firm, the tendency is downwards. Brown sheeting and shirtings are in moderate request, at previous quotations. Eleached sheetings and shirtings are not very brisk, but are steady in price. Both kinds appear in fair supply. Cotton flannels are pretty freely taken at full figures—the production is rather limited, and this helps to sustain the market. There is a pretty good business doing in denims at old rates. Drills are rathe plentier, but are saleable and firm. Ginghams rule quiet, yet are otherwise unchanged. Lawns and nanduct, yet are otherwise unchanged. Laws and nan-burgs are inanimate at last quoted prices. Print-ing cloths are less active, but stiffly held. Prints rule quiet and languid. Stripes and ticks are inactive at previous quotations. Woollen goods are but sparingly dealt in at irregular and rather easier prices the supply heing heavy for the season and feedly prices, the supply being heavy for the season, and freely offered, while the inquiry is unusually tame. Blankets are less sought after, and are depressed in value. Desirable styles of cassimeres are in fair demand, and are firm. Cloths rule quiet at former prices. The stock is mederate. Doeskins are less abundant and in good re-quest at-steady rates. Flannels attract rather less attention, but are unaltered in value. Jeans are inanimate and drooping. Lindseys sell slowly, but are firm. Mouslin de laines are plentier and less inquired for, yet they command full prices. Satinets are dull and heavy. hawls find pretty ready buyers at a slight reduction in price, excepting for the choicest styles, which are unhanged. Sheep's grays and tweeds are moderately active and steady. Foreign productions continue without improvement. Only the most seasonable styles of British and continental fabrics are in any demand, and these are even very cautiously purchased at old rates. The imports are falling off, but the stocks are ample, and there is some disposition to press them upon the market. This affects prices unfavorably. The auction sales are decreasing in number and interest, and their influence upon the trade is not very powerful. The market nevertheless, is quite depressed, and the tendency of it is favorable to buyers.
